PAID "RICH DIVIDENDS"

Gallant Saga Of Ark Royal Is Revealed By Admiralty

By ALFRED WALL
LONDON, Aug. 14.—(AP)—

The German bomb which started Lord Haw-Haw asking "Where is the Ark Royal?" actually did damage to Britain's late and most famous aircraft carrier—it broke some crockery in the galley.

The admiralty disclosed this in a strikingly-written booklet "Ark Royal" issued yesterday. It was the brave tale of a happy ship and a valiant crew, full of thrills of the sea and stories of air fighting from the warmth of the equator to the crackling cold of the Arctic.

The vivid account tells how "the Ark" delivered what A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, called "rich dividends" in damage to the enemy before a torpedo from an unseen German submarine sank her Nov. 13, 1941. The booklet was the first of its kind ever issued by the admiralty.

FIRST SCORE OF WAR

The Ark's war story began on Sept. 26, 1939, when one of her planes shot down a Dornier flying boat, the first enemy aircraft destroyed in the war by British forces. The Ark was then dispatched by a Heinkel piloted by Lieut. Adolf Fracker who reported he "thought" he had scored a hit.

The German propaganda ministry promptly declared the Ark Royal was sunk. The admiralty denied the report, but Lord Haw-Haw began to interlard his broadcasts with the question "Where is the Ark Royal?" Officers of the Ark's bridge had watched Fracker's bomb "come boiling down." The bomb exploded 20 yards from the port bow to the enemy before a torpedo from self and plunged downward and then righted herself," the booklet said, "the only damage was some broken crockery."

From then on the Ark ranged up and down the Atlantic and through the Mediterranean sending out her planes into many actions which now are legendary.

STALKED GRAF SPEE

After patrol work in the North Sea, she sailed in October of 1939 as part of the force sent to Freeport and Capetown in South Africa to intercept the pocket battleship Graf Spee. In December, she started for Rio de Janeiro, but turned back when the heard that the Graf Spee had been scuttled. In March, 1940, after being refitted in England, the Ark sailed for Alexandria but was recalled in April and went to the Norwegian coast to shield British troops at Namsos and Andalsnes. She helped ed cover the evacuation in Norway the following month.

On June 8, 1940, she lost eight of the Suka planes, each of which carried a 500-pound bomb to attack the German battleship Scharnhorst in Trondheim harbor.

"The claim of one and possibly two hits on the Scharnhorst was but momentary compensation for the loss of 18 gallant pilots and observers, the heaviest loss the Ark had known or was to know in a single operation," the booklet said.

"MELANCHOLY" ACTION

In July, 1940, the Ark planes were chosen for the "melancholy action" against the French fleet at Oran, where they attacked the battleships Strasbourg and Dunkerque.

One of the most vividly described actions was her part in the chase and sinking of the German super-dreadnaught Bismarck in May, 1941. Her swordfish planes landed on the flight deck "rising and falling 40 feet on occasions." The visibility was so bad that one of the swordfish pilots by mistake sent a torpedo against the cruiser Sheffield, which was shadowing the Bismarck. The Sheffield narrowly escaped the torpedo.

One illustration of the Ark's exploits in the Mediterranean showed her hidden by a cluster of 39 bombs. Admiral Somerville said at the time:

"I thought she was gone. Then we saw the fore end of the flight deck emerge. She came out undamaged with all her guns blazing like a great angry bee."

Of the sinking of the Ark Royal the anonymous author of the booklet, who was disclosed by the Owen Rutter, sea story writer, and son of a Royal Navy officer, said:

"SOMETHING REMAINS. The Germans had sunk the Ark Royal, yet something remains which even they could not sink. . . . that gallant company had been close to death many times and they had reached the peak of life. Together they created an indelible fellowship which has become the fellowship of the Ark. . . . Those of the Ark will take it with them in other ships and in other aircraft out to sea and into the sky."

Nazi Escapees Recaptured By Veterans' Guard

FREDERICTON, Aug. 14.—(CP)—

The two German prisoners who escaped from a New Brunswick internment camp Tuesday afternoon have been recaptured. Heinz Wirtz, 22, Nazi merchant seaman, and Gerhard Kneipfel, 21, civilian inmate, were discovered within a radius of five miles from the camp yesterday afternoon by members of the Veterans' Guard participating in the widespread hunt which has been proceeding since Tuesday. It was indicated by the camp commandant that the pair had not succeeded at any time in getting beyond this area. No details of the capture were made public.

The Australian lung-fish has a pedigree which goes back 19,000,000 years.

Ancient Cambridge Bombed By Nazis

D.N.R., the German news propaganda agency, said Nazi raiders on Aug. 6 attacked Edinburgh and the university town of Cambridge. The raids were not on a heavy scale, however, and although there were some casualties, first reports indicated the number was not large.

Yanks Convert British Estates Into Airdromes

By WES GALLAGHER
WITH THE U.S. AIR FORCE IN BRITAIN, Aug. 14.—(AP)—

Some of the best civilian and army aviation experts of America are converting centuries-old British estates into great air bases in a rush to send hundreds of bombers over Germany daily.

I completed a 1,000-mile air tour of United States bases in Britain yesterday with Maj. Gen. Walter Hiale Frank, chief of the United States Service Command, to get a firsthand view of the vast aerial smash the United States air forces are planning.

AHEAD OF SCHEDULE Plans for the United States air force are weeks ahead of schedule. In two days flying in a troop transport, with the general of the controls part of the time, some of the things seen were these:

1—Thousands of American civilian technicians working side-by-side with British laborers erecting famous old estates apart and slicing long runways across the hunting grounds. Giant hunters are rising from lawns which once were beautifully landscaped.

2—Machine shops often in size to some of the largest in the United States rising from bogs where a month ago the silence was unbroken.

3—Highly-skilled American aviation mechanics working from dawn to dusk as stewards in their eagerness to speed the unloading of ships and get the shops built.

4—Ward hangars and storehouses, partly underground, staffed by United States soldiers.

5—At least one wealthy, retired American businessman too old for the army, wading knee-deep through mud, digging drainage ditches as his share of the war effort.

EQUAL TO FACTORIES

Gen. Frank, who is concerned with servicing and repairing warplanes and those of the ferry command as well as providing a pool of personnel and planes, has under his control the equivalent of several of the biggest airplane factories.

One of the principal shops was made at a huge base under construction jointly by an aircraft company and the army. When completed the base will service every type of American plane. Less than two months ago, the base was an old estate.

Conventions May Come Under Ban

SASKATOON, Aug. 14.—(CP)—

G. H. Lash of Ottawa, director of public information, predicted today that limitation of railway travel in Canada may prohibit the holding of national conventions within another year.

"This may be the last occasion during the war when your association will be able to foregather in this fashion," he said, in addressing the 22nd annual convention of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers' Association.

"It is not unreasonable . . . to venture the prediction that if this war continues for another year very definite limitations may have to be imposed on railway travel in Canada and national gatherings such as this will become impossible."

In Ottawa yesterday, Transport Minister, Hume announced an order prohibiting special fares for convention groups after Aug. 31.

Slaughter Of Hostages Due Netherlands

LONDON, Aug. 14.—(CP)—

Nazi broadcasts repeated today threats of death as reprisal against Netherlands hostages unless railway saboteurs in the occupied Netherlands surrendered by midnight tonight and fear was expressed by Netherlands government sources there that a "terrible slaughter" is impending.

Tass, Soviet news agency, reported from Geneva last night that Herman Goering had ordered German agents in occupied countries to wage "a resolute and merciless struggle against all attempts at revolt."

The Germans were said to hold 1,600 hostages.

Even as the deadline drew near there were new reports of continued sabotage. The Germans announced that four persons were arrested in an attempt to blow up a Nazi-controlled radio station.

A Reuters dispatch from Stockholm said Gen. Friedrich Christensen, Nazi commander in the Netherlands, declared that explosives found on those arrested were of "foreign origin."

He was quoted as threatening reprisal against hostages throughout the district.

None of the Nazi broadcasts heard here specified the number of hostages whose lives would be forfeited if the saboteurs who wrecked a Netherlands train a week ago failed to surrender.

and warned further restrictions on civilian use of railways may become necessary.

Queen Certain Dutch People To Rise Again

MONTREAL, Aug. 14.—(CP)—

A "rejuvenated, new and spiritually strong Netherlands" will rise from beneath the heel of that nation's oppressors, Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands said in an address last night at a gathering of Netherlands and their friends.

Speaking in the Netherlands lounge at last night's gathering, Her Majesty expressed appreciation and unshaken stubbornness of "our suppressed compatriots who spiritually and materially undergo such nameless suffering."

From oppression of the past the best qualities and characteristics of Netherlands had come to the fore, "so now too rises from under the heel of the oppressor a rejuvenated, new and spiritually strong Netherlands."

"On all of us rests the dire and high duty to put ourselves in the position of this greatness and these sufferings and to keep this picture always in our hearts so that, in the truest and deepest sense of this honored name, we may at all times be Netherlands today and tomorrow and forever."

LAUDS SEAMEN The queen concluded her address with a tribute to Netherlands seamen.

"To you who on the ocean defy the Boche and the Japanese, to you who sacrifice literally everything for the liberation of our realm and for the exalted cause for which the whole of liberty-loving humanity is fighting, I wish to express the thanks of all of us for your unrelenting sense of duty, your daring and your courage."

League President Stresses Need For Health Education

TORONTO, Aug. 14.—(CP)—

Gordon Bates, president and founder of the Health League of Canada, yesterday told delegates at the annual convention of the Canadian Teachers' Federation meeting here this week that there is great need for more health education in Canada today. "The cost of illness in a small country like Canada is $1,000,000,000 a year," he said. "The cost of preventive steps taken by Dominion, provincial and municipal governments in a year is only $7,000,000."

War Attitude Of Canadians Is Criticized

SASKATOON, Aug. 14.—(CP)—Canadians must invest $1,200,000,000 in war bonds within the next 12 months but this goal will not be realized "unless we as individual citizens of a nation fighting for our life understand better than we do today the full and awful significance of the issues which are at stake," G. H. Lash, Ottawa, director of public information, said today.

"Why do I say that we shall fail to raise this loan unless we change our attitude?" Mr. Lash asked in an address prepared for delivery to the 23rd annual convention of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association.

"Within the past two weeks I have talked to nearly 100 people about the forthcoming loan and what is expected of them. They are people who live in Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and Winnipeg and some are residents of smaller communities scattered far and wide across this land."

SAY CAN'T DO IT

"Without exception . . . they have said to me, they cannot do it. They are making all the sacrifices they can possibly make already."

"Sacrifices! Do let us substitute the symbolism and the beauty of that word. Sacrifice is a saintly, God-given word reserved for the men and women who have made a free-will offering of their lives upon the altar of freedom."

"Who are in this lush and lavish land to pride of sacrifice because we may have to go without a new coat this winter, give up membership of a club or two, eat less expensive meals, walk instead of ride to work, move to a cheaper apartment, humble our pride by taking in boarders, labor a little harder ourselves to save acquire extra help?"

"If these things, he sacrifices then what is this hallowed thing that others are doing upon the battlefields of the world where our fight is being fought so that this land may remain unspoiled?"

"The answer will be given in October. I hope and pray that to the glory of this nation, to the memory of our sons who have fallen and to the honor of those who still must die before this war is won, the people of Canada will say, no matter what the price of freedom be, we shall pay it."

CRITICIZES WOMEN

Dealing with the manpower problem, Mr. Lash said many women are insensitive to their wartime duty.

"The women of whom I speak are those who, when offered jobs in vital war industry, refuse to consider them unless they are jobs in which they will not soil their hands or in which they will be placed in authority over others."

"National selective service officers from whom I get this information."

Death Over The Delta

Blaze from flaming plane, shell bursts and streaks of ack-ack form spectacular pyre as German bomber is shot down over N.E. delta area.

mation tell me that this condition becoming more pronounced daily, especially in the highly industrialized sections of eastern Canada. I am glad to say that they report an almost complete absence of such robbery west of the Great Lakes."

He closed with these words: "No Canadian deserves victory who is unwilling to give to victory the same full measure of his means and labor which he will be forced to give to the enemy in defeat."

PATIENCE IS URGED

FOR SECOND FRONT

SASKATOON, Aug. 14.—(CP)—Canadians should be the last persons in the world to urge a premature front in Europe, Gilles Poirer, general superintendent of The Canadian Press, said today as he warned the annual meeting of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association against the "popular fantasy" that the second front is at hand.

"Our boys overseas are eager to get into France, their commander has stated they will," Mr. Poirer said. "Why not leave the job to the people who are on the spot, they will be the ones who pay the shot—not the slaps and bands, but with their lives."

VALUABLE TASK

"The task of the moment is that of the canny football coach to keep the men patient until the proper time comes, rather than to get them worked up prematurely. Right now the weeklies can do a valuable job for Canada in this game of life and death by telling the grandstand quarterbacks to pipe down."

He said that Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, commander of the Canadian army overseas, will never waste the lives of Canadians. "When his men fight their way into Europe they will have a reasonable chance of gaining their objective. The operation will be fully planned, thoroughly backed by naval and air power. It will not be premature. Failure would influence the cause of the war almost as decisively as a successful invasion, but the other way."

Mr. Poirer, press relations officer on General McNaughton's staff during 1941, said it is virtually certain the Canadians will be the spearhead of any second front operation. Their morale was unblemished, high though many had been away from home for two and a half years.

He warned against placing faith in the enthusiastic statements of the so-called experts who insist on finding bright spots whether they exist or not. They were the people who inspired the slogan of complacency: "The situation is hopeless but not serious."

WON'T FACE TRUTH

He said it is a fact that the people of Canada want to be told the truth—but it is also a fact that most of them won't face up to it when they're told. They shut off the radio or turn to the comics.

That is one of the big jobs of the director of public information (G. H. Lash, who spoke before Mr. Poirer). If he could help that everyone in Canada would face the truth—but he were sure they knew the value and the dire need of saving sugar, rubber, gas, bonds—1 am sure he would feel we are heading on our way up the long hard road to victory."

Weekly Newsmen Banquet Guests Of Saskatchewan

SASKATOON, Aug. 14.—(CP)—Delegates at the 23rd annual convention of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association last night were guests of honor at a banquet given by the province of Saskatchewan.

In speaking of Saskatchewan, Premier W. J. Patterson said that some appeared to have the impression that this was the "poor relation" of the Canadian provinces, but it was true that the people had, in recent years, been through particularly trying circumstances.

THIRD IN SIZE

He pointed out that Saskatchewan is the third of the Canadian provinces in area and population, and with the exception of Prince Edward Island, most dependent on one industry. Its future depended on the success of its agriculture. Saskatchewan should put all its eggs in one basket, but the premier reminded his audience that this was a new country, financed by limited capital, and it was natural to develop the industry that promised the quickest return.

Saskatchewan's population of 200,000 consisted largely of pioneers from many countries. The premier told the visitors, With 12,000 farms and more than 20,000 acres under cultivation, 10,000, 600 of them in wheat, it could be seen that the large percentage of income depended on wheat. Mr. Patterson gave some crop statistics to show wide variations.

Crop failure created problems, but so did abundance, such as that of harvesting, storage and marketing, which in the present emergency, would be solved locally.

Mineral wealth, he went on, is not Saskatchewan's first consideration. The people took second place to no one in loyalty to Canada, willingness to assume their share of responsibility in personal service, contributions, acceptance of restrictions and sacrifices.

Touching again on the cosmopolitan makeup of the population, Premier Patterson said that frequently those from other lands showed the greatest appreciation of their opportunities here.

MAIN THING TO WIN

The main thing now was to win the war, but after victory Saskatchewan would expect greater consideration and demand a proper place in the confederation family, he went on. He asked the newsmen to take home a picture of Saskatchewan as a part of Canada, not isolationist in any sense, as loyal as any, where the people were greatly concerned about the war. For the duration, they were prepared to forget their disadvantages, real or imagined. They were eager to participate in post-war rehabilitation and were ready and willing to make a full contribution to their nation.

North Manitoba Indians To Help In Harvest Work

THE PAS, Aug. 14.—(CP)—Indians from northern settlements are being recruited for harvest work in Manitoba in a plan under which dominion and provincial governments are co-operating.

Harold Falkner, trader and trap agent in the northwest, representative of the two governments, He stated nearly 700 Indians will be recruited. The governments guarantee retransportation to all Indian harvesters, provided they work for three weeks or more.

Canuck Fliers Rescued After Channel Crash

By LOUIS HUNTER

WITH THE R.C.A.F. SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Aug. 14 (CP)—The crew of a Canadian Halifax bomber damaged by a Junkers 88 which they destroyed before making a splash-landing in the English channel, were rescued after spending 14 hours in a bullet-riddled dinghy bobbing under the noses of the Nazis.

The Halifax, "ditched" after a successful mission, was in a crash-landing in the English channel, were rescued after spending 14 hours in a bullet-riddled dinghy bobbing under the noses of the Nazis.

ONLY CANADIANS

Kieckheaf has since been reported missing. He delivered the "coup de grace" to the Junkers over Chertiers in Belgium, and he and another flier of Netherlands descent were the only Canadians in the crew.

A protracted engagement with the twin-engine Nazi fighter left the big Halifax with only two of its four engines operative. The pilot, an N.C.O. like the rest of his crew, was obliged to make a crash-landing on the water.

The crew got into the dinghy and began paddling and bailing. The stranded Halifax crew was rescued in mid-afternoon by a formation of Spitfires returning from a sweep over occupied territory.

and an R.A.F. six-engine rescue launch was dispatched to pick them up. Other Spitfires had flown over earlier without sighting the dinghy.

Interned Labor Man Is Released

PORT ARTHUR, Aug. 14.—(CP)—Bruce Magnusson, secretary of the Port Arthur Trades and Labor Council and of the Lumber and Sawmill Workers' Union at the time of his internment in August, 1940, arrived home last night after receiving his unconditional release on order of the minister of justice.

Apple peel has a vitamin C content three to five times that of the apple flesh.

German Seamen From Far East Interned Here

Nearly 800 German prisoners of war, all merchant seamen from Axis vessels immobilized in Far Eastern ports after the outbreak of war in 1939, arrived in Canada recently and were whisked to internment camps in central parts of the Dominion.

The men were interned in India, many of them for two and three years. As merchant seamen they were considered only enemy aliens. Then, a change was made in their status, and they were sent to Canada as prisoners of war.

Gave NO TROUBLE

Gourds on the trophy that brought the prisoners to this country said they were well-behaved and gave no trouble. However, every precaution was taken to see that they behaved well. If they broke laws and over-powered the guards they would have been able to take over and operate the ship.

"There were engineers, deck hands and men to work anything on the ship," one guard said. "If they ever got out, they could have taken the boat to Germany or any place. We felt as though we were sitting on a powder-keg, and you can bet we watched those birds pretty closely."

The prisoners ranged in age from teen-aged boys, probably apprentices or mess-boys, up to tough,

Shortage Of Milk Looms In Victoria

VICTORIA, Aug. 14.—(CP)—Possibility of a milk shortage in Victoria loomed last night following the statement by Vancouver Island Milk Producers' Association, that unless they received a better price for their milk they would start diverting it to butter making starting next Saturday.

The producer action followed a meeting with distributors who turned down a request the price of milk be increased from 21¢ cents a gallon set at the farm to 32¢ cents a gallon for 3.6 percent butterfat content milk delivered in Victoria.

brine-soaked old mariners who had devoted a lifetime to the sea.

Most seemed fairly contented with their lot, although some displayed typical German sullessness. For the majority, it was probably a welcome change after months spent baking in Indian heat.

VESSELS SEIZED

The Axis ships were seized at different eastern ports, where they had been plying their trade, unmindful of the approach of war.

Some were at Indian and Burmese ports, in Singapore, the Netherlands East Indies and Australia.

Some of the prisoners were from ships seized at Massawa in Eritrea, when the British occupied that former Italian colony.

All were taken to India for internment except those seized in the Netherlands possessions. Those latter were sent to camps on the island of Sumatra, and then were removed when the tide of Japanese invasion rolled near.

A Story About Sugar

Someone started a rumor that sugar rationing was not necessary in Canada, because there were 100,000,000 pounds stored in warehouses in southern Alberta, with a new crop coming up.

The sugar controller eventually found this story was based on a lie, but by enough people to make a denial necessary. He pointed out that Alberta has not produced that much sugar in the last 10 years; and re-stated, what most informed persons must have known, that "at least three-quarters" of Canada's sugar requirements have to be brought from outside.

That should set this particular rumor at rest.

If there was any purpose in starting the report this must have been a desire to set up an excuse for hoarding sugar. There is no possible excuse for doing that. Three out of four pounds of sugar in the world are only obtained because farmers risk their lives to bring cargoes through submarine-infested waters. What less can any decent-minded person do to keep within the ration limits?

The broader effect of this official denial should be to set the people free against the whispers of weird and wonderful tales. Of the making of these there is no end, and the subjects run all the way from the rational to the fantastic, the highway and the making of war profits.

The gossip-monger is abroad in the land. To the peddler of unverified "information" the appropriate response: How do you know?

What Went Up And Why

The Bureau of Statistics has announced that the cost-of-living index for July stood at 117, an increase of 1.2 over the figure for June. This made a net increase of 2.4 points since the index last October, and a corresponding adjustment in the cost-of-living bonus was ordered by the War Labor Board.

It is explained that the rise from the October cost-of-living level was 90 per cent due to increased prices of food, and last beef and pork. A sharp demand for Canadian beef cattle across the border, where prices were higher; this led to a further increase in the cost of beef. The cost of potatoes, which had fallen last year, and large enough to supply the market.

Through a new buying agency, enough cattle marked for export was diverted to the home market to prevent a beef shortage; the Government standing the loss between the domestic and the export price—which the farmer is paid. Retail prices have sagged since July 1st as a result, and a further drop is expected toward the fall. The potato crop is expected to be better than last year, and large enough to supply the market.

The early summer advance in these food articles is still being considered to have exerted only a temporary influence upon the cost-of-living, which may return to a matter of weight and balance of last fall so far as beef and potato prices are concerned.

The Offensive Goes On

Duisburg followed Düsseldorf on the list of German war centres bombed by the R.A.F. As Berlin admits that damage has been done to structures other than "churches and hospitals," the photographs will probably show another considerable area of wrecked factories and warehouses, perhaps rivaling those in the three cities previously raided.

These four great industrial centres were struck within fifteen days. There has therefore been time for any extensive repairs to be made in any of them, and the curtailment of munitions production is cumulative.

The figures for July show the R.A.F. destroyed 421 Axis plants in all operations, lost 432. This rate of loss threatens no enforced slackening of the bombing raids. One factory in the United States is turning out nearly that many bombers in a month, and not all the planes lost were bombers.

Neither do the figures suggest that the enemy has devised any super-system of ground defences. The losses sustained were sustained in carrying on an offensive in which great numbers of planes were used. Offensive operations are usually the more costly in machines and men. Hitler's promise to make German cities invulnerable cannot now delude many people.

There is every reason to suppose the 27 raids made on German centres in July are not the normal pace, but that now has been reached in which the raids as machines multiply either the raid frequency will be increased or the bombing fleets will grow in size and destructiveness. Both may happen.

The Anti-Home Rule Rites

Four days of rioting in India resulted in nearly 70 deaths, with several times that number injured.

Large as these figures are, they do not suggest a condition of country-wide disorder. On former occasions more people have been killed and more injured in a single day's rioting in a half-dozen Indian cities, when one or other faction undertook to celebrate a religious festival in communities chiefly populated by those of other sects.

What is shown is the wide difference between the non-violent principles of Gandhi and the fanatical devotion of his "disciples." Gandhi would never harm anyone. But his partisans construe passive resistance as license to stone the police, burn houses, and manhandle white men for no reason but their color.

It is to be hoped observers are correct in thinking that the rioters are getting their fust; because there is danger that the turbulence might turn into a race war. The patience of the non-Hindu races must have been sorely tried by the clamor to have "Brahmin rule" imposed upon them, and they are men whose patience it would not be well for the British to overtax.

The important question is how far the strike has affected the war industries. If these keep going, India can be defended; and only in case of defeat will the maintenance of the war effort be threatened by the destruction of labor riots.

As one who sat in the press conference in Ottawa, I am sure that Mr. Little told Mr. Caldwell that he is not only not untrue but infamous.

Rights Protected

On the third day of August, Mr. Elliott M. Caldwell, a public relations officer, set down with a publisher in Ottawa and outlined a series of regulations with regard to the control of manpower which aim at a total war from the standpoint of the Canadian people.

The exact nature of these measures may not yet be divulged for very obvious reasons. But a general pre-knowledge of them would be of use to the balance of industry.

Some information did leak out. On the night of August 3, Mr. Elliott M. Caldwell, a public relations officer, set down with a publisher in Ottawa and outlined a series of regulations with regard to the control of manpower which aim at a total war from the standpoint of the Canadian people.

Mr. Caldwell Misrepresents The Labor Situation

By HAROLD L. WEIR

Perpetrating obfuscation in his fantastic and dangerous view of the labor situation, Mr. Caldwell, in his attempt to misrepresent and hamper the Government on an every possible occasion, has seized upon this leak and is endeavoring to make political capital out of it.

In other words, he is endeavoring to weaken the authority of the Federal Government by making organized labor nervous about what is going to happen to it.

Let me say this from absolute conviction: Mr. Caldwell's position is a very serious one, and it is one which he is endeavoring to make political capital out of.

Mr. Little and his associates are scrupulously determined to respect the rights of organized labor in every possible particular. It is no more than to be expected that they are leaving over backward to do it.

Big Business

Mr. Caldwell's reference to "big business" and their newspapers is a shrewd of truth in it.

At the press conference on August 3, one newspaper executive did call, bitterly and emphatically, for a drastic revision of the rights of labor and privileges enjoyed by the printing trades.

His argument was that it was useless to organize Canada's manpower for a total war effort while the printing trades were engaged in a strike which, as he inferred, would prevent the Government from getting the necessary for an all-out effort.

His appeal to Mr. Little and his associates was that they should employ to cancel these agreements, and that they should be allowed to be cancelled, restricted.

Thus far, Mr. Caldwell's reference to "big business" and their newspapers did make a very serious impression on the minds of the rights of organized labor.

But Mr. Caldwell is utterly wrong in assuming that the Government is engaged in a strike which, as he inferred, would prevent the Government from getting the necessary for an all-out effort.

No man was ever wrapped more in the arms of the Government than Mr. Little and his associates. They are the men who want to interpret total war.

Information About Love Letters Asked

Many An Enamored Woman Wishes She Had Never Learned To Write: Caution Is Often Thrown To Winds And There's Trouble In Store

A young girl asks me whether I will tell her how to write a love letter. Good heavens, no! A thousand times no! I would just as soon teach her how to commit harakiri or lead her into a trap as to furnish her with a recipe for smothering her heart on paper.

For all the follies that girls ever commit, of all the things they do that they blush to remember, and passionately regret, of all the messes they get themselves into, their old love letters lead the rest. Many and many a woman has wished that she had never had to write, and envied the flirtatious heroine in one of Rhoda Broughton's novels who boasted that whatever she may have said to men not one of them had a line of her handwriting.

Would that all girls followed this noble example of prudence and their spooning by word of mouth or over the telephone, or by telegraph or radio, which does not encourage eulogistic sentimentalities as does a sheet of white paper, nor leave a permanent record of how idiotic a girl can be.

For some unknown reason, letter writing is a peculiarly feminine vice. It goes to a woman's head like strong drink, and when she sits down before a desk and takes pen in hand she becomes just as irresponsible as any drunkard for what she does and says.

The younger she is, the more inebriated she gets. She throws caution and truth to the wind and lets herself go on a sentimental jae. She writes boys whom she scarcely knows and for whom she does not care a rap, how she adores them and that life is a howling wilderness without them. She entrusts them to return and save her from perishing of a broken heart, though she doesn't care whether they ever see them again. She is even besotted enough to repeat:

Minute Make-Ups

Let love show itself! Open a bottle of carbonated water, add a little of two lemon-juice to a pint of the water. Put this on throat and face. Drink the juice of a lemon with soda bicarbonate and water. This is a refreshing tonic especially if your skin feels prickly from heat and exposure.

what she considered romantic details of getting parties, and she signs herself "Your loving Jane, or 'Your World Without You' Love Letter, Sally" or "Your blushing Susan."

NOT GENUINE AFFECTION

Now these letters will be hard enough, goodness knows. If they were genuine outpourings of affection from a girl who was in the grip of a great passion, but nine times out of ten they are no such thing. They are the vaporous of a sentimental school girl who is imitating what she has seen in the movies and is repeating some of the stilted phrases of love that Great Gatsby or Sylvia Law made in their great scenes.

And the poor little nitwit who is sending this impassioned document off to some boy she has never even seen, or perhaps to her school idol, doesn't realize the portent of what she is doing or how cheap she is making herself.

Nor does she stop to consider what becomes of those love letters she writes so blithely. Perhaps she imagines that the boy regards them as a sacred treasure and keeps them tied up with blue ribbons and stores with them under his pillow. If she does, she knows little of boy or machine nature. If he does, he shows them around to prove what a devil he is among the girls.

USED FOR BLACKMAIL

If he is merely careless, as most men are, he leaves them around in his desk or on his pillow. If he does, he knows little of boy or machine nature. If he does, he shows them around to prove what a devil he is among the girls.

Some girls have the letter writing complex so badly that they not only write to a boy first, but if he doesn't answer their letters they write again and again. This is the worst possible technique to use in keeping his interest in them alive. It makes the girls seem too eager for one thing and it bores him to tears to be snowed under with letters that he doesn't want.

Few men are afflicted with pen paralysis, and if one wants to hear from a girl he takes the initiative in a correspondence. Furthermore, it is the letter he looks for, not never comes that piques his interest and makes him want to find out what's happened to Sally.

So for these and a thousand other reasons I urge girls to take a dissection of the weather. I implore them when they are tempted to write love letters to sit on their hands until the impulse has passed.

MOTHER GOOSE

WAS NOT AN IMAGINARY CHARACTER!

Many of the stories which have been told by the children of America and elsewhere for many years. Most of us have thought of Mother Goose merely as a legendary character, but we were wrong about it. Mother Goose actually lived, and her grave may be visited in the old cemetery in downtown Boston. Her real name was Mrs. Mary Goose and she read the stories to entertain children of her day.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mothers may, at times, be cruelly inconsiderate of the neighbors in their own refusal to be bothered by their children. Everyone is upset when children are concerned and everyone, without exception, blames the child's behavior on the parent.

Some examples of ordinary inconsiderateness would seem to advise that no matter how burdensome the mother is at the moment she cannot make the neighbors hear the burdens that are rightfully hers. One mother, whom I was told, made a practice of allowing her children to sleep most of the day and then permitted them to stay up until the wee hours of the morning, quarrelling, fretting, screaming while her neighbors dried hopelessly for their rest.

Another mother, who had 12-month-old child out in a playpen and ignored his frantic screams for hours at a time, "I'm training him to stay in the pen," she commented when asked if something could not be done about it. Training is a fine practice, but it can't be done at the expense of the neighbors' comfort. Helplessness to change the situation makes such crying more than nerve-racking.

The parent who allows her children to run about a neighbor's yard and flower beds, trampling on the tender plants or tearing them up as they pick the flowers, may be living up to her own idea of there being nothing to do, "because they are just children." But all children learn correct behavior by what they can and cannot do and if they suffer the penalty of loss of liberty when they misbehave that liberty they would learn.

And what of the mother who bundles up her baby and children and transports them to some over-burdened neighbor and dumps them upon her with the silly hope that they won't bother her and would she mind looking after them while she does a little shopping? The little shopping, needless to say, drags into the house.

Then there's the neighbor who allows her children to come over to play and makes no effort to get them home at meal or nap time. Leaving the enormous duty of telling the children to depart to their embarrassed hostess.

All of these are examples of plain

Slither: "We've all chosen the things about the house like to do. Now we'll each have to choose at least one of these which are left, for everyone does some tasks which he does not like."

Neither mother nor children should have a monopoly on all the household tasks which are interesting or pleasant.

PARENTS RESPONSIBLE

When children are a responsibility, handicaps to freedom or even a burden, these are concerns of no one but the parent. If neighbor with to be helpful, that is one thing, but to be forced to be so is quite another. It would be better for such parents. If their friends and neighbors spoke up frankly and related to be imposed upon.

Victory Through Air Power

Including battleships, are committing suicide when they venture within bombing radius of hostile land-based aviation.

The one nation whose aeronautical prowess has impressed him most, Germany, built it on the foundation of a separate Luftwaffe. Japan's successes in the first rounds of the Pacific ocean extension of the war—Pearl Harbor, the Philippines, Sarawak, off Malaya (in the sinking of two British dreadnaughts)—were directly attributable to the air weapon.

*DESPERATION*

There is a kind of desperation in the "logic" of some of the arguments advanced against freeing air power from its present subordination to the older services.

Even the coincidental fact that France, possessing an independent air force, was quickly defeated has been advanced by an army spokesman to discredit air power.

By the same logic, we should terminate the autonomy of the U.S. army, since France fell despite its independent and much-fought army.

The dismal showing of Italy, despite its independent aviation, is likewise cited. But it happens that Mussolini's land and sea forces have done no better.

The simple truth is that a separate air force is not a wonder-working device to insure the ultimate military ascendancy but merely the minimal precondition for successful modern warfare.

*IDEOLOGICAL*

Another variety of farfetched objection voiced in these places may be described as "ideological." Unification of our aviation services under an independent command is the story runs, implies a centralization of military authority suited to totalitarian regimes.

Those who imagine that the United States is like Don Quixote fighting windmills. No matter how military aviation may be organized, neither the sea nor the land service can or should be stripped of aviation logically and tactically a part of its operations.

Just as the navy has marines and other adjuncts which, in a literal sense, are land troops—just as the army has transport boats and other seagoing auxiliaries—so both the army and navy would continue to possess airplanes for their own specific purposes.

The distinction that needs to be made in between integration and coordination. The U.S. marines, for instance, are integrated units in a tactical task is merely coordinated with the navy, though it may be taking orders from an admiral.

The navy's submarines, carried on its ships and piloted on its naval stations, is integrated with the navy. The U.S. marines, for instance, are integrated units in a tactical task is merely coordinated with the navy, though it may be taking orders from an admiral.

Major de Seversky points out the Japanese air attack on Pearl Harbor, again overhauled by thick columns of smoke soon after the attack. De Seversky asks: "When Japanese aviation attacked, did they present us with an army or a navy task?" He points out that: "In the following days the public heard of Japanese ships attacked by American 'army planes' and 'navy planes'—one objective sought by three auxiliaries of two different services, in an element inaccessible to either of those services."

each differently trained and in most cases with unlike equipment.

Other objections

Another set of objections rests on a misunderstanding of the scope of a separate air force. It assumes that the new department would arbitrarily separate in and control anything that flies.

Those who proceed from this false premise are like Don Quixote fighting windmills. No matter how military aviation may be organized, neither the sea nor the land service can or should be stripped of aviation logically and tactically a part of its operations.

Just as the navy has marines and other adjuncts which, in a literal sense, are land troops—just as the army has transport boats and other seagoing auxiliaries—so both the army and navy would continue to possess airplanes for their own specific purposes.

strength from its specialized personnel. Its full sense of responsibility, its ability to extract the last ounce of effectiveness without interference from an alien mentality.

The task of the guiding intelligence is, in fact, enormously facilitated when it can deal with a self-sufficient air force.

There can be no leading strings held tight by the older services to hamper coordination. The very principle of effective co-operation calls for true equality on the part of the collaborating elements.

There can be no coordination between a navy and an air force subordinate to the navy. In that case, there can only be orders based on naval ideas and blind obedience by aviation.

COMMENT BY ROOSEVELT

In May, 1935, President Roosevelt, obviously speaking in accordance with the recommendations of his military advisers, made a statement in opposition to the emancipation of air power. It began with the assertion that "flying efficiency depends on unity of control."

This is a truism to which advocates of a genuine air power not only subscribe but which they use as a major reason for establishing a separate unified air force.

In the continental European traditions, an army tactician could exercise command. The German army in those operations used aircraft as mere support for a ground campaign.

But over England, with pure air warfare in progress, only a different species of tactical brain, adjusted to the special character of the air weapon, could direct the battle.

That was why Hermann Goering, Hitler's aviation chief, took over the command. But if Britain had not possessed an independent air command, who would have taken charge of the struggle?

The army, because the main target was on the ground, and the navy, because the main barrier across the sea was a navy channel.

No military service in wartime acts on its own whims. Their coordination, however, does not require a merger of their internal organizations. Each derives its own command.

Yet the United States, under analogous circumstances and with the present form of organization, would face just that ludicrous dilemma.

Would army aviation hand the ball—or the bomb—to navy aviation? Or would the navy then carry the ball across the ocean, leaving it back to army aviation to carry for a touch-down on targets deep in the heart of enemy territory?

WHO WOULD COMMAND?

In a continuous battle that rages across land and across sea, in the unbroken "air ocean" that covers land and sea alike, who would command, an infantry general or an admiral?

When Japanese aviation attacked the U.S. fleet in the Philippines on Dec. 7, 1941, did they present us with an army or a navy task?

In the following days the public heard of Japanese ships attacked by American "army planes" and "navy planes"—one objective sought by three auxiliaries of two different services, in an element inaccessible to either of those services.

The same duplication, the same confusion of authority, exists throughout our national aviation.

GENTLEMEN'S AGREEMENT

Incredible as it sounds, it is a fact that a few years ago the army and the navy reached a gentlemen's agreement under which army aviation promised not to interfere with navy aviation.

Now that "army planes" can cross ocean distances, now that "navy planes" land continents as well as oceans in their stride, the obvious absurdity of the jurisdictional overlapping should be sufficiently clear.

The air, it cannot be too often repeated, is a separate element, distinct from land and sea, an element with its own space and its own laws and problems.

It is a continuous element engulfing the entire globe. Strategically speaking every political division is a part of the air element, whether air-over-land and air-over-sea is artificial and meaningless.

UNDIVIDED

The uninterrupted sphere of the air is a continuous and undivided air command and fully uniform air equipment, co-operating where necessary with the army and navy, and expecting their co-operation where needed.

But each of those three commands should be organized and developed and administered as a powerful force fully integrated and thoroughly free in its own element.

SPLINTERED AVIATION

Certainly the first condition for success in any campaign is unity of command. Unhappily we now possess only splintered aviation, none of it specifically geared to the primary task of taking and holding the skies for America.

This is the principle which President Roosevelt's statement overlooked. It went on:

In sea operations the airplane is just as much a part of the military operations as are the tanks, the engineers, the artillery, or the infantry itself. Therefore the air force should be part of the army and navy.

On examination it becomes clear that the president voiced the official views of the existing military departments. These military departments are confusing two categories of unity.

No one denies that both the army and navy need unity of command in their respective spheres. This includes authority

Missionary Dies; Served in India

SUSSEX, N.B., Aug. 14.—(CP)—A cablegram has been received by relatives here informing them of the death in India of Mrs. Elizabeth E. Tasker, aged 77, a missionary here for many years. Mrs. Tasker is survived by one sister, Mrs. A. L. Pollock, of Calgary, and three brothers, Fred and Samuel in Kansas City, N.B., and Arden of California. She was a sister of the late Tully E. Gausson, of Calgary, N.B.

Used Machine Left Under Plots

It is the little things that count in table manners and a smart hostess, no so aware, whether you observe it or not.

Naturally, after a dinner party, you don't look for napkins. But if you do, you will find them.

The lovely girl in our sketch correctly half-dressed her and put it under the edge of her plate.

When she is served first she knows it's all right to begin before the others—but what counts is she doesn't put it in the wrong place being based on the idea that you're not eating.

On a restaurant date, she knows it's a man's place to choose a table for her, but if it's a double date she'll sit opposite the other woman.

TORONTO, Aug. 14.—(CP)—G.N. Cuthbert, of Shawinigan Falls, Que., yesterday told delegates at the annual Canadian Teachers' Federation convention here this week that French-Canadian Catholics would not support federal aid in education provided no attempt is made to control the schools.

John W. Barrett, of Edmonton, said education must recover financial assistance, especially in the Prairie provinces, where population is scattered and transportation difficult. Mr. Barrett also stressed equalization among schools in each province.

Free Freight Proposed For West's Cattle

LONDON, Ont. Aug. 14.—(CP)—A "free freight" plan for shipping western Canadian cattle to Ontario to alleviate the present shortage was advocated at a closed meeting here yesterday, or about 14 leading cattlemen from western Ontario counties and L. E. O'Neill, head of the livestock branch of the Dominion Bacon Board and minister of agriculture for Saskatchewan.

Definite action was delayed pending future discussions. W. K. Riddell, district agricultural representative, said the proposal finding general favor among cattlemen was that the Dominion government pay freight charges on western cattle, up to one dollar a hundredweight. This cattle from Winnipeg would be shipped free while stock from points further west would mean nominal charges for Ontario buyers.

Also attending the session were R. H. Graham, Dominion livestock official of Ontario, and L. E. O'Neill, head of the livestock branch of the Ontario department of agriculture.

Fort Benning Set Welcome Canucks On Special Course

FORT BENNING, Ga., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Col. George P. Howell, commander of the paratroop training school at this United States Army post, prepared today to welcome 35 Canadian officers and 20 non-commissioned officers expected to arrive early next week.

The Canadian officers will be quartered in officers' bachelor rooms while the N.C.O.'s will be housed with American soldiers. All the Canadians will go through the regular course in a class numbering about 500. They will roll out of bed at 6 a.m. and training begins at 7:30. The first week is largely devoted to rigorous physical conditioning.

Beaverbrook Son Is Awarded D.S.O.

LONDON, Aug. 14.—(CP)—Wing Cmdr. Max Aiken, 22-year-old son of Lord Beaverbrook and a famed night fighter, was awarded the Distinguished Service Order last night.

An unusually laudatory citation announcing the award praised Aiken as a "brilliant pilot and a gallant leader who set an inspiring example."

Aiken already holds the Distinguished Flying Cross and was recently given the Czechoslovakian War Cross. He has a total of 12 air victories.

One night last month he shot down two German night raiders while his squadron bugged three more.

Nazis Drop Fire Bombs On Britain

LONDON, Aug. 14.—(CP)—Thousands of fire bombs, but no high explosives fell early today on an East Anglian town and British officials said only slight damage and no known casualties resulted.

The attack was the only hostile air activity during darkness last night.

There were no reports of new R.A.F. night offensives against Germany.

Axis Armies Far From Goals; Solomons Key To Jap Security

A GOOD deal was made of the statement attributed to a "British military source" that German advances in the Caucasus, coupled with the presence of Marshal Rommel's Afrika Korps just west of Alexandria, threatened the United Nations tenure of the whole Middle East.

British military sources thus quoted are usually junior officers delegated by the War Office to sit behind a desk in the Ministry of Information and give discreet and general answers to journalistic questions.

There is, of course, nothing new about the notion that the Germans are trying to extirpate the British from the Middle East, nor that the Axis geopolitical theory of war envisages a junction of Japanese and German forces in India with protected land and water routes girdling half the globe.

Under this scheme, Germany and Japan would have to trade between themselves the rich resources of their newly won empires and the fruits of their respective labor.

The Germans would reach the Indian Ocean by land routes to Basra and the Gulf of Persia, presuming and the retreating British destroyed the Suez Canal, while Japan would reach the common waterway through Burma and the Bay of Bengal.

Needless to say, each of them has a long, long way to go before making this dream a reality.

Japan is desperately tussling in China to obtain overland routes through southern China to French Indo-China, and Germany is desperately battling against Russian defenses to break through the Caucasus into the Middle East, and with the British to reach the Middle East through Egypt.

It cannot be too often repeated that wars are won by defeating the enemy or destroying his means of making war, and not, as Napoleon found out, by taking huge areas of ground, but failing to destroy your most powerful enemies.

When the aggressor takes up arms, his purpose is to put himself in a position to dictate the terms of peace to his own advantage. There is no profit in a continual state of war.

The Germans are as anxious to get this war finished as are the United Nations. Their conquests are worth nothing to them until peace is restored and they can exploit them for their own enrichment.

If we want to ponder the future, we must ask ourselves whether the military potential of the United Nations is declining in relation to that of the Axis powers, or increasing. That will answer the other question of whether we are winning the war or losing it.

JAP TENURE PRECARIOUS

No study of maps to see how many acres have been gained or lost can help one to adjust estimate of the war's progress, because some acres are very much more important than others from a military point of view.

It is sometimes far less important to hold a piece of ground for yourself than to prevent the enemy from holding it. This principle is being applied in the Pacific, where the Japanese have taken possession of a lot of places they don't want just because it is important that we should not have them.

It is important to the Japanese that we shouldn't have these places for fear of what we might do to the enemy if we had them and that is the reason why we are so keen to get them. And so we are going after them.

The battle in the Southwest Pacific is a very important one. It is a struggle for offensive bases on our part, and for defensive bases on the part of the Japanese.

If the Japanese lose control of the Solomon Islands, they will have difficulty in holding New Britain. If they get kicked out of New Britain, their positions on the Papua Peninsula of New Guinea will be threatened from both sides, and they may lose that. If they lose New Guinea, their control of the Banda Sea is threatened, and they must look to their defenses on Ambona and Timor.

In other words, they will have precious little leisure for developing the resources of the Dutch East Indies and fulfilling their part of the Axis bargain.

British Guiana has produced two and three-quarter million ounces of gold in the past 30 years.

"Death Warrants" For German Targets

"Calling cards for Hitler" are signed by members of a U.S. bomber squadron at an English command station, before the 2,000-pound bombs go into the bomber bays. They call these little ceremonies "demolition parties." The men are training for their part in the air war on Germany.

32 Sailors Lost On Cuban Vessels

KEY WEST, Fla., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Thirty-two men were lost when Axis submarines torpedoed two small Cuban ships, the Santiago de Cuba and the Manzanillo, in the Gulf of Mexico Wednesday morning.

They were the second and third Cuban vessels to fall prey to U-boats. A small fishing boat previously was sunk. A United States vessel picked up 27 survivors about 15 minutes after the Santiago de Cuba and the Manzanillo were sent to the bottom within less than two minutes. Survivors said they owed their lives to their ability to swim, for there was no time to lower lifeboats or cut loose life rafts. Sinking of the vessels already had been announced at Havana. Survivors were landed here.

Turkish Foreign Minister Named

ANKARA, Aug. 13.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Nuray Memmedoglu, former minister of justice, was appointed foreign minister of Turkey today, succeeding Sukri Saracoglu, who now is premier. The 50-year-old Memmedoglu is a veteran of 30 years in the foreign office.

Sign Contract

CLEVELAND, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Republic Steel Corp. announced today it has signed a contract with the C.I.O. United Steel Workers of America, incorporating 44-cent daily pay raises recently ordered by the United States War Labor Board.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—(CP)—Not a single morning newspaper in London noted today that this is the first anniversary of the Atlantic charter by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

Catalinas Smash Seven Jap Planes

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Seven large Japanese seaplanes were destroyed at anchor in one attack by big United States PBV amphibian planes operating in the Aleutian area under "seemingly impossible" weather conditions, Rear-Admiral J. H. Towers, chief of the United States Bureau of Aeronautics, reported today.

The Consolidated Aircraft Corporation's flying boats, commonly known as Catalinas, have been used in modified dive-bombing and strafing attacks on Japanese installations on Kiska Island. Admiral Towers said in a communication to Harry Woodward, Consolidated president.

"The Catalinas have been carrying out scouting operations with virtually no ceiling and have put in hundreds of hours of blind flying, both day and night," he said.

"In some instances the Catalinas have returned to their bases with more than 100 anti-aircraft bullet holes. The effectiveness of armor and self-sealing tanks need not be described."

Householder Calls For Realism On "The Kitchen Front"

PORTSMOUTH, England, Aug. 14.—(CP)—Householder Malcolm Holmes has issued a call for more realism on "The Kitchen Front," claimed, in a letter to the editor, that there was little point in the Food Ministry's early morning broadcasts making "virtue out of sheer necessity."

From time to time, he said, food front officials called ordinary food, such as carrots, are "no nourishing and good for you" served either raw or under all sorts of wartime disguises. Holmes added he didn't mind the food, just the manner in which something everybody has been eating all along is put forward as having something especially good and new in wartime.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Excited passengers smashed windows of a subway train today as a short-circuit fire sent smoke billowing through a tunnel where the cars were stalled.

"For my part I readily suffer makeshift meals, but because I shall ever be mesmerized into believing they are delicious but because they really help to spread the day when I shall return to a real trencherman's plate of bacon and eggs," he said.

Weekly Press Has Vital Role, Says Educator

SASKATON, Aug. 14.—(CP)—The weekly newspaper is "the real focus of local loyalty along with the church and the school," said James S. Thompson, president of the University of Saskatchewan and delegate to the 23rd annual convention of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association today.

"With the growth of urban life our civilization has largely deteriorated," Dr. Thompson said. "We must look to the rural areas and the small towns for fresh streams of new life to cleanse our common life, therefore the small paper have an enormously important part to play in the shaping of the future."

Dr. Thompson said the war has brought a new and fundamental encounter with the basic questions of human existence. "We can no longer deal with these problems by the method of appeasement—the long conspiracy of indifference must be broken and the time for any superficial view in education has come to an end."

"We must go forward but our success depends on a new sense of life's values—such as are provided by the churches of North America."

The churches of North America have agreed on a general advance in the method of education. There is a new evidence of cooperation of religious teaching into our school system. That amounts to a revolution in the American life.

But the churches realize also that all that touches life is education. Chief among these influences is the press."

R.C.A.F. Loftmen Will Take Tests

OTTAWA, Aug. 14.—(CP)—The R.C.A.F. said it was selecting recruits to fly the Royal Canadian Air Force need for 70 loftmen for the new piston-driven now in use and two volunteers have been selected. One will be in the headquarters staff today.

That he is enlisted was R. F. Irish, Toronto. He was one day ahead of J. D. Chealey of Hamilton. He is a member of the R.C.A.F. No. 1 Manning Depot in Toronto. Work is just getting under way in the R.C.A.F. area in erection of the many new lofts which will be needed for the piston services."

The R.C.A.F. is anxious to obtain good blood blood. "Pigeons are not needed yet but will be wanted in the near future. It is hoped to obtain these from the thousands of Canadian pigeon fanciers."

Axis Camps Get Aerial Attacks

Cairo, Aug. 14.—(AP)—British fighter-bomber attacks on Axis camps and vehicles were reported by the British headquarters R.A.F. communication today but the land front in North Africa lapsed into complete inactivity.

At least one self-propelled engine lighter, of the type which Field Marshal Erwin Rommel has been using to replenish his men and arms from across the Mediterranean, was sunk by R.A.F. light bombers off the African coast, the commander said.
